

“Berlin supports self-determination and acceptance of sexual diversity” (ISV)

Berlin's action plan against homophobia and transphobia

Factsheet 03e

The Initiative for the Acceptance of Sexual and Gender Diversity (ISV) has been in existence since 2010. It comprises numerous actions that are intended to fight homophobia and transphobia and encourage the acceptance of sexual and gender diversity in various fields of activity.

In 2009, the Berlin House of Representatives passed the first federal action plan to promote the acceptance of sexual and gender diversity and to fight homophobia and transphobia. Since 2010, measures have been consistently implemented and developed by the Berlin Senate. Alongside the various administrative Senate Departments, representatives of civil society are also involved in their implementation. The overall coordination of the measures is in the hands of the Berlin State Office for Equal Treatment and against Discrimination (LADS) of the Senate Department for Labour, Integration and Women's Issues.

Data and facts

An estimated 250,000 lesbians, gays and bisexuals live in Berlin. Around 40,000 of these are aged over 65 and about 80,000 are young people aged 12 to 27. There are also transgender and intersex people but their numbers cannot be estimated.

In total there are about 13,000 registered civil partnerships<sup>1</sup> in Berlin and about 8,000 so called rainbow-families with 12,000 children in Germany.<sup>2</sup>

Every day there are incidents of homophobic and transphobic discrimination and violence towards lesbians, gays, bisexuals, transgender and intersex people (LGBTI). Homophobic and transphobic violence in the form of insults, threats and direct physical attacks is aimed specifically at the identity of the person concerned. If aspects such as ethnic background, skin colour or even social status also play a part, studies show that the experience of discrimination and violence increases. Many crimes are not reported and there is a large number of unrecorded cases.
